SUBJECT: MANAGING THE FINANCIAL IMPACT OF JOB DISLOCATION

The purpose of this Information Notice is to transmit Job Dislocation 101: Smart Tips to Plan Ahead and Manage the Financial Impact and Destitución del Empleo \(Conocimientos Básicos\): Consejos Acertados para Planificar con Anticipación y Manejar el Impacto Financiero. Both summaries contain exactly the same information.

These documents contain important advice and cautions for employees and dislocated workers regarding their financial opportunities and options in this time of economic upheaval. These were created specifically for WIA program use by the three entities listed under "Who We Are." The lead entity was the California Department of Corporations.

The main focus of these summaries is what their names indicate: Financial strategies that can help dislocated workers. However, these documents also contain useful and easily understood advice for employed persons (e.g., how to financially prepare for possible job loss, how to prepare for retirement). These brochures provide information that promotes financial literacy that can be helpful in all Workforce Investment Act (WIA) programs, including youth preparing to enter the labor market, adults enrolled in job training programs, workers facing the possibility of layoff, dislocated workers, employers who want to help their employees cope with the current financial downturn, etc.

Neither version of this document is copyrighted, so feel free to duplicate either or both of them for distribution to WIA participants. Since both versions were developed entirely with State and WIA funds, distribution must be free of charge. Distribution to non-participants is allowable but substantial such distributions should typically be by third party entities, at their expense (including costs of duplication). Third parties must also distribute them free of charge.

If you choose to translate this document into another language, please provide an electronic version to the Employment Development Department's Workforce Services Branch for possible distribution and use in other parts of the State. Translations may not be copyrighted.
